

For the first time, Berlin is holding a fair dedicated to non-European art: Ars Terra Incognita (Non-European Antique Art & Textiles Fair), from November 8-10. For three days the historical center of the German capital will be the focus of all eyes, as the fair will be held in the building of the Council of State on the Schlossplatz, not far from the museum area. Berlin has long had a particular relationship with non-European cultures, as demonstrated by the significant collection of the ethnological museum in Berlin-Dahlem. Some fifty European and American dealers will be exhibiting at this major event, which is expected to be a great success, as non-European arts have neglected by the city's noted Art Forum Fair for many years.
